About the 2nd Sunday of Lent

Jesus tells us through Paul that he will transform us – change our body to conform to his. In the gospel, the apostles witness the transfiguration of Jesus. These changes, and many other wonders, occurred in scripture and occur in us. Most of the time, this is not apparent to us. When we feel God’s presence, it is momentary; yet there is transformation. When we pray for something, often it has already happened and we are not aware right away. Abraham certainly did not understand that he would indeed have descendants like stars in the sky. So, like Abraham, let us trust with question. Our wanting to trust may transform into faith and perhaps we, too, will begin to count the stars in our lives. Let us follow the light from darkness into salvation. Let us be faithful in the face of difficulty.
